- Abbott and O'Rourke's Recent Fundraising Hauls Compared, The Texan, 22 July 2022
    - O'Rourke had over half a million individual contributions in his report, 41 percent of which were from within Texas. Of his $27.6 million raised, 52 percent came from within Texas. O'Rourke pulled in three $1 million donations during this filing period, two from West Lake Hills couple Tench and Simone Coxe and the other from progressive billionaire George Soros, who lives in New York. Abbott's percentage of his over 112,000 contributions from Texas is comparable to O'Rourke's: 43 percent. But concerning the cash itself, 86 percent of his $24.9 million raised came from Texas.

- Beto Tries to Backtrack From Hard-left Positions, Appealing to moderate voters, O'Rourke "clarified" his stance on guns and spoke against critical race theory in public schools. Texas Scorecard, 15 March 2022
 As the Democrat Party has not won a statewide office in more than 20 years, Sydnie Henry reports Democrat gubernatorial candidate Robert "Beto" O'Rourke has recently been walking back some of the hard-left positions that served him well on the national stage but not as well in Texas. O'Rourke famously proclaimed in the 2019 Democratic presidential primary debate in Houston, "Hell, yes, we're going to take your AR-15, your AK-47," in support of mandatory gun buyback programs that would essentially confiscate currently legally owned military-style rifles. However, at a campaign event in Tyler last month, O'Rourke told reporters, "I'm not interested in taking anything from anyone. What I want to make sure that we do is defend the Second Amendment." In a similar appeal to moderate voters Friday night, O'Rourke distanced himself from critical race theory, a hot topic in parental rights and public education. After once again dodging the question of whether he supported the racist ideology in public schools, O'Rourke eventually answered, saying, "No, I don't think [CRT] should be taught in our schools."
